The Stonington K-12 Building Committee invites you to participate in the first of three community workshops regarding modernization of Stonington's elementary schools.

The K-12 Building Committee has selected Drummey & Lane Anderson, Inc. ("DRA") to study modernization of the elementary schools. The architects and engineers at DRA are in the process of assessing existing school sites and other possible locations, and will consider the broadest range of possible options to address the needs of Stonington's schools. In addition to meeting with school staff to discuss about education programming needs, the K-12 Building Committee and DRA have planned three workshops for town residents.

The workshop topics and schedule are:

Tuesday, November 18: LISTENING: Gathering community input
Monday, December 15: ALTERNATIVES: Understanding the options
TBD, January 2015: SHAPING RECOMMENDATIONS

Frequently Asked Questions

Has the K-12 Building Committee made any decisions about the future of the elementary schools?

No!!! The K-12 Building Committee is systematically exploring various ideas to find the best value solution for Stonington.

I've attended previous Board of Education and/or Building Committee meetings about our school system. Why do I need to attend this meeting?

Your knowledge, understanding, and input are a welcome and needed part of this process. The condition of our elementary schools is a key issue facing our community, and there are many options to explore. We hope that you will participate in this process.

I see there are three different community workshops being scheduled over the next three months. Should I attend all three workshops?

Yes. The focus of each workshop is different. The purpose of the November 18th workshop will be to listen to citizens and obtain community input. In December, the focus will be on taking information from the previous workshop and developing alternatives. Finally, the workshop in January will focus on the specific recommendations that will be proposed to the Building Committee. Workshops will build on each other.

What specific topic will be discussed at this next community workshop?

Concurrent breakout sessions will collect community input on the topics of:

- "Containers" – the physical buildings / sites
- "Contents" – contemporary early childhood education programming
- "Currents" – Stonington's trends including demographics and enrollments
- "Children/students" – assessing the interests and needs of students

I have ideas about what's important for our schools. How can I share those ideas with DRA and the K-12 Building Committee?

Attend the November 18th community workshop! If you are unable to attend in person, please send your comments to k12building@stonington-ct.gov. Information sent to this e-mail address will be collected and shared with DRA.

What will be done with the results of this workshop?

DRA will use community input to shape options and recommendations that will be presented to the K-12 Building Committee.

When will the K-12 Building Committee act on DRA's study recommendations?

The timeline calls for DRA's recommendations to be presented to the K-12 Building Committee following the study conclusion at the end of January, 2015. The K-12 Building Committee is targeting a referendum for late winter.
