The Stonington Economic Development Commission and Shellfish Commission will host a community conversation to explore aquaculture in our coastal waters.

Tessa L. Getchis, an extension agent with Connecticut Sea Grant at the University of Connecticut, will lead a community discussion on how we use our coastal waters for cultivating seafood.

During this meeting, you will learn about the challenges facing aquaculture along the coastline and explore how community concerns can be addressed through the regulatory process.

All input is appreciated. This meeting is not a formal public hearing.
